Christopher Knight Lopez is a part of the one percent, not the one percent you know, but the one percent you don't know. He is a Professional Hustler, hustling millions each year by taking advantage of various market driven opportunities. He has opened more than seven businesses in his 15-year career. That's hustling. In his international best-selling book "I Made It. Then I Didn't," Christopher reveals the category of business professionals who are Professional Hustlers.

He explains how they stack up against entrepreneurs, business owners and the self-employed, all of whom he says are distinctly different. Additionally, he shares how he became a success, earning over $10,000,000 in his career. Christopher is committed to showing how without conventional branding, social media presence or notoriety, you can be a success. Christopher is a non-practicing Accredited Financial Analyst (AFA), Master Project Manager (MPM) who previously held insurance & securities licenses.
